Subject: Non-Integrated Teacher Preparation Representatives for the LDTP Project

In 2004, CSU faculty identified a statewide lower-division transfer pattern for integrated teacher preparation programs. That pattern will be made available to interested California community college students via the same Internet site we will use to post disciplinary major Lower Division Transfer Patterns (LDTPs).

In the current year we will develop and post an LDTP for students who aspire to elementary school teaching, but who do not wish to follow an ITP. These students will instead take the traditional fifth year in which to win their teaching credential. They nevertheless will seek best paths for their undergraduate preparation, including at the lower division while in community college. Our term of reference for the LDTP that will provide this best advice is “non-integrated teacher preparation programs,” or “non-ITP programs” for short.

We hope that faculty experts will identify a pattern for non-ITP preparation that is fundamentally similar to the pattern identified for ITP programs. We think that would be welcomed by the community college students looking for best advice as to how to prepare for a major and a career. Therefore, it would be helpful to have the same faculty participate in non-ITP discussions as those who took part in the ITP development, if possible.

This is, therefore, a request that you consider naming, as your campus representative to the November 19 non-ITP meeting for the LDTP Project, the same individual who represented your campus at the 2004 ITP negotiations. A list of faculty who participated in the ITP meetings is attached.

A few campuses have already submitted to Kelley McCoy their lists of LDTP representatives (reminder: the deadline for these lists is Monday, October 3). If your representative to the non-ITP meeting is not the same faculty member who participated in the ITP negotiations, we will leave it to you to determine if it is appropriate or possible to replace him or her.

Please contact me at kboyum@calstate.edu or at 562/951-4712 if you have any questions or concerns.

Thank you.
