CSU REACHES TENTATIVE AGREEMENTS ON SUCCESSOR CONTRACTS WITH LABOR UNIONS

The California State University (CSU) has reached tentative agreements on successor collective bargaining agreements with the California State University Employees Union (CSUEU) and the Statewide University Police Association (SUPA).

Both tentative agreements will be brought forth to the CSU Board of Trustees to vote on ratification at the upcoming board meeting taking place on July 12 and 13, 2022. Membership of both unions will vote on ratification in the coming weeks.

Details from both agreements, including compensation increases for members of both unions, will be made available in the near future.

CSUEU represents approximately 16,000 support staff covering academics and operations of the CSU, including information technology, healthcare, clerical, administrative and academic support, campus operations, grounds and custodial.

SUPA represents the police officers, corporals and sergeants of the California State University police system.
