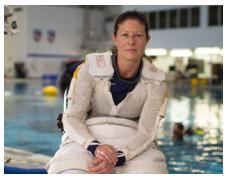
TITAN SUCCESS

A TITAN IN SPACE



Chemist, NASA astronaut and '93 alumna Tracy Caldwell Dyson's dream to explore space began at Cal State Fullerton. She has completed four spacewalks and logged nearly 24 hours of extravehicular activity. In her most recent mission aboard the International Space Station for six months in 2024, Dyson investigated technology demonstrations to study how fire spreads and to help prepare humans for future space missions and assist people on Earth.

INVEST IN TITANS

A $4.5 million bequest from Jerry Conrey and his wife, Dr. Victoria Shook Conrey created a launchpad for bold ideas with the naming of the Conrey Center for Entrepreneurship. The center is committed to promoting social entrepreneurship by providing resources, education, and mentorship to students and community members who seek to solve social problems by creating sustainable and innovative business models that address societal issues.
